

Boy, are the American people stupid! What can I get away with this year? In 2001, I convinced them that 19 Arabs, with box-cutters, outsmarted our defenses and hijacked and crashed four airliners. I also convinced them that, for the only time in history, fire brought down a steel-framed building.

Well, I think you did pretty well when you lied about weapons of mass destruction in Iraq, got our people to out Valerie after her band exposed our lie, then sent Americans to their deaths for our pocket books, helped me and our friends loot the treasury and nuked the children of Iraq with depleted uranium.

And most Americans are too stupid to realize that Osama and Saddam were enemies. Osama was my friend – not Saddam's. Saddam hated religious extremists. And they call me dumb!

My favorite was the Pentagon where, despite no evidence of a plane crash, we convinced them that an Arab who couldn't fly at all did maneuvers that made the Blue Angels look like amateurs and crashed an invisible airplane into the one section of the Pentagon we didn't care about.

And they continued to believe our ridiculous conspiracy theory – even after seven of the hijackers and Barbara O turned up alive and well. It'll be hard to beat that hoax this year.

And those torture camps. Now that was real fun. It's like back in the old days when your grandfather financed the death camps in Germany. Only we're better at torture than Adolph's people. I was thinking we could try it on the Democrats next. After all, their leaders didn't call for impeachment when others were tortured. Who's going to care about them?

But what is all this nonsense about impeachment over my admitting to a little thing like breaking the Constitution and spying on Americans? I guess the Democratic leadership has to make a little noise to earn their pay. Nothing our dictatorship can't handle.

And Katrina was the most fun of all. I cut the funding for the infrastructure, signed the executive order wiping out the wetlands that would have saved New Orleans, then hired mercenaries to shoot the survivors and arranged for my backers to get all the funding and steal the land from the former residents of New Orleans.

For this year, we still need to come up with something more impressive than war, torture, treason, spying, drowning the people of New Orleans and 9/11.

I know. I'll finish nuking all the countries with oil and natural resources so all my enemies will be destroyed.
